I that was all.

Dooth told you, then, this letter was for O'Laughlin.

Gr. Coxe here remarked again: I must object to this dence, us it is not followed up as to what he did after e receipt of the letter. The Judge-Advocate General remarked that the chheir correspondence.

Mr. Coxx raid be objected to any evidence of Booth's ending a letter to any individual. It was simply an act of Booth's own, to which the defendant was not net of Booth's own to which the defendant was not prive.

The Judge-Advocate-General then said that they did not offer the letter in evidence at all, but chiefly their correspondence with each other.

[The objection was finally entered upon the record, but overruled by the Court.]

Q. When did I understand you to say this letter was carried? A. It was in March.

Q. Are you sure? A. Yes. sir.

Q. Late or early in March? A. About the middle of the month; I was coming along the rear of the mineral-water store, and he said, couldn't I take a note for him? I said I could not. Q. What induced you to stay later than you intended? A. Well, it was the liquor.

C. Didn't Lieut, Henderson press you to stay? Question objected to by Judge-Advocate Brigham on the ground that it was a cross-examination as to Henderson, whose name was not even on the record yet. Major-fron Lew. Wallace remarked that Mr. Henderson himself could be brought into court then. The Court asked Mr. Core if the question was withdrawn, to which he replied, No, sir. The objection, however, was sustained by the Court;

Q. You stated that probably the liquor kept you here now I will ask you if anything else did? A. I can't say.

Say.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 15, 1955.
The witnesses examined this afternoon in the ourt Martial showed the intimacy of Booth, Arnold and O'Laughlin.

Mr. Cox. for the defense, objected to the whole of this evidence, on the ground that the mere fact of intimacy was not evidence of conspiracy.

Judge-Advocate Holt said they had fully established the intimacy of the party in Washington, and he simply proposed to show that the intimacy existed in Baltimore.

The Court overruled the objection, but ordered it

May 11, 1865.

Dear Brother R.: I thought it high time to keep my promise and send you a letter, and at this time it might be desirable, as there are many false reports in the papers charging me with violation of orders in shooting Booth. But my commanding officer of the expedition not only clears me from all blame, but recommends me to the attention of the commanding general for my exertions in bringing the murderer to justice. He was a desperate man, and fally determined to die rather than to be taken alive, and it was only when actually necessary that I shot him. Wher I first saw him by the light of the burning hey, he tareed toward the fire, either for the purpose of putting it out, or else of shooting the one that set it on fire. I was on that side, and then he was quite near to me, and I had a fall front brenst view. It would have been much easier to have hit him then than when I did; but I waited till I was satisfied his purpose was to use his arms and try and fight his way out of the door through which Harrold had just been taken. Then I fired on him and he fell, and when I saw where the ball had struck him in the neck, near the car, it seemed to me that God directed the ball, for it was just where he had hit the Fresident.

I do not know how so on. Yours truly,

EOSTON CORBETT, Sergt, Co. K, 16th N. Y, Cav.
